What is the definition of

A hare-A hasher that will go out in the pouring rain to set a trail for the enjoyment of others having left their breakfast and flask at home.

A hasher-Someone that will go out in the pouring rain and not give wimpy excuses like-it's too wet, I'm going down a mine, I'm on holiday etc etc!

A very select group of hashers met, their numbers swelled by the presence of Wankertill, a visiting hasher from Haltwhistle who had a lot of experience of hashes in the big city and marathon running.

The group started through long bracken trying to avoid the venomous tics reputed to be in residence there. They then headed on towards the Naddle and then over for the ascent –via a number of checks-of High Rigg. One blob and you are on certainly helped find the right path as the blobs were disguised by lichen, wool etc. This hash was unique in having 4 different sorts of flour on the trail ranging from wholemeal to gluten free! Towards the end of a fine hash there was a regroup where drinks and biscuits had been hidden in the bracken-this time not moved by a visiting gorilla/mischievous hasher-see hash report from Whinlatter.

The ONIN was a good run down the hill-some hashers not realising that they had started the run on this trail and forgot to turn in the opposite direction.

Entertainment was then provided by Wankertill, who proceeded to have a shower rigged up from the boot of his car! Is this a southern habit? This was an excellent hash over varied terrain with plenty of checks and an ascent of High Rigg.

The ONON was at the Horse and Farrier where the christening ceremony of our now regular hashers took place-We now have Weakender and G –String amongst our ranks.
